

ABSTRACT

The calculation of production in manufacturing company is a very important thing in running business processes in the company. His is very important because it can be seen from calculation production costing of each product produced different. But there are many difficulties in running business processes in manufacturing company when calculation production costing are done manually or computerized. This application was built because of the difficulty of the calculation production costing for each product is produced according to the activity performed at the time of production. The calculation method in production costing in this application based on just in time. This application was built using the programming language PHP with MySQL database. This application was built to compare the production costing based traditional costing method with just in time method, and generates accounting records such as journals and ledgers.

Keywords: Applications, Production Costing, Just In Time Methods