

ABSTRACT

Inventory control is very important in Small Medium Enterprises (SMEs). Without a good inventory control, the company could face supply shortage problems with customer demand. It is not only caused the company can not make a profit, but the company can also lose important thing which is customer trust. This paper was made with the purpose of helping a small business restaurant, Kedai Mamak, Jakarta, in solving inventory control problems from this company by searching for the best result between the two common methods of inventory control, Reorder Point Model and Periodic Review Model. The results of testing the service level on both methods choose that Reorder Point Model as a method of inventory control for Kedai Mamak with an average service level of each menu is 98,93%.

Key Word: SMEs, Inventory, Inventory Control, Reorder Point Model, Periodic Review Model.