

ABSTRACT

The destruction of forests in Indonesia currently got not enough concern from year to year. Based on the records of the Ministry of Forestry of the Republic of Indonesia, about 1.1 million hectares or 2% of the forests of the Republic of Indonesia is shrinking every year. With the destruction of forests results in a wide range of impacts and disasters to society such as: decreasing oxygen quality, flood disaster, drought, landslides, coastal abrasion and disruption of the water cycle. Semarang is one of the cities affected from it. The damage of mangrove forests in the city of Semarang makes Semarang city hit by floods rob every passing year. It is so detrimental to people living on the coast of the city of Semarang. Of the various problems concerning the crisis of the forest in Indonesia to the detriment of many societies, resulting creation of Lindungi Hutan, community that are trying to preserve and repair the damaged forests throughout Indonesia. Lindungi Hutan community is a platform based in Semarang focusing to raise donations and gather people around the world to engage in joint actions with the planting and monitoring of the environment, especially on forest ecosystems. Therefore, the authors are interested in documenting how Lindungi Hutan community struggle to preserve forests in Indonesia back into a documentary with a duration of 15-20 minutes.
