

ABSTRACT

Prayer is a pillar of religion, like a dome or tent, if the pole collapses then the dome or camp collapses. So that anyone who does not carry out, he has broken down his religion. Because Prayer is the duty of all Muslims, it must be taught and familiarized from an early age. In order to be trained and have no difficulty if the child has entered the age of being obliged to pray or 'baligh'. The introduction and teaching of the five daily prayers for children has been made known early on in elementary schools in Islamic religious education. Learning the procedures for praying for children must be in a way that is fun and interesting so it requires learning media that makes children love to pray. The method is made by conducting observations, interviews, literature studies and questionnaires. The media that is created is then used as a media for learning the procedures for prayer for elementary school-aged children in a book containing pop-ups. This book contains designs that are tailored to primary school-age children so that the learning and teaching process becomes more enjoyable and children will be more interested.
