

ABSTRACT

Juragan Kerang is a culinary restaurant that produces shellfish or seafood products. The shellfish skipper purchases raw material supplies from suppliers. For each management, the portions of food and drinks that are made have the respective ingredients. The shellfish skippers are experiencing difficulties because the management of raw materials has not been resolved so that supplies run out more quickly. Uncontrolled inventories make it difficult to see when the restaurant should buy raw materials again. Application for Purchasing and Materials Supplies Using First In First Out (FIFO) Perpetual Method contains functionality, namely capital deposits, raw material purchases, raw material receipt accounts, purchase returns, and presenting financial reports that can produce journals, ledgers, purchase reports, receipt reports, returns reports and stock cards. The functionality that is tested used by Blackbox Testing method.
