

ABSTRACT

Low information literacy makes a person inclined to share any information obtained with others without knowing the security of such information. Countermeasures are done by socializing information literacy to various sectors, especially education. The negative effect of fake news is to create public anxiety besides fake news is present to manipulated many people, exploit groups, and take advantage. One of the information literacy programs is SiBerkresasi, Among others by encouraging the inclusion of information literacy material in the formal curriculum. The movement also encourages people to actively participate in spreading positive content through the internet and to be more productive in the digital world. The research method uses quantitative methods with casual research design to test the truth of hypotheses with a simple random sampling technique with 100 people obtained through Google Form. Based on the results of this study, the result show that there is an influence between information literacy on the knowledge of fake news on Telkom University. Because from the results of simple linier regression analysis it is evident that the knowledge of fake news is influenced by information literacy.

Keywords : Information Literacy, Knowledge, Information, Fake News