

ABSTRACT

Iyan Catering is a foodservice provider that handles food order management which is done manually so that it is needed an applications that can support data of food order management. The existence of those application will be able to help the owners of catering and customer to order food. The owner can also provide the status of workmanship during production of food from the beginning until completion of it to customers. In the developing process of this applications using the Waterfall method which includes communication, planning, modeling, construction and deployment using the Java, PHP programming, and database MySQL. The functionality of this application can perform the data orders which is made by the owner, the customer can do orders and see some menus that have been provided in the application, and the owners can figure out information schedule orders that have been entered and can undertake the approval process to the incoming orders. Moreover this application can process data-data which includes food menu, data, customer data, received order data, and sends the status of the work to the customer. So the existence of the application can be the media recording orders or food order data management as well as food-processing activities means of information for the customer and order information for owners.

Keywords: Catering, Android, Data Orders, Information Provider