

ABSTRACT

This research aims to determine how the communications of process and communications of pattern made between female teenagers who ever had pregnancy before marriage with their mother. The Background of this research on female teenagers who ever had pregnancy before marriage. The methodology research was qualitative descriptive with informant of female teenagers who ever had pregnancy before marriage. From the results of the study the researchers found that the communication is done both running alternating and reciprocal and communication that does not escape discussion concerned with pregnancy out of wedlock has ever experienced female teenagers. In the delivery of information after experiencing a pregnancy before marriage is mostly done by female teenagers to their mother. The contradictions arising from the case of pregnancy before marriage can be overcome by dialogue conducted each day can be concluded that the closeness of the relationship between female teenagers who ever had pregnancy before marriage with their mother and the communication it does do every day as well as the discussion conducted begins from the simple to sex can reduce the conflicts that occurred between female teenagers with their mothers.

Keywords – Communications of Pattern, Interpersonal Communication Process, pregnancy before marriage.