

ABSTRACT

Web based application for English writing course is an application to facilitate students in writing exercises using English and facilitate lecturers in monitoring the results of their students' writing. This application is based on case study in English writing course at Faculty of Applied Sciences, Telkom University. This application is created using the Prototype working method until the implementation stage. This application is built using PHP programming language, database MySQL, while for text editor using CKEditor and CMS KCFinder. Collaborative Writing is one of the concepts used in this application. Functionalities contained in this application include text editor as a container for writing students, spellchecker and writing history as an evaluation tools for lecturers in monitoring the writings of students, workspaces, discussion forums and file storage. This application is intended as a english writing media with the concept of collaborative writing fellow students to achieve the competence of writing in English.

Keywords: Application, Writing, Web, English Writing Course.