

ABSTRACT

Students that are in late adolescent age towards early adulthood. This condition is a period to achieve a more mature relationship with the opposite sex or also called dating. dating is an activity between two people to get to know each other better by living together. Dating violence is the discovery of patterns of behavior that are unpleasant, abusive and used to exert power and control over the couple. The purpose of this study was to find out how the dating violence victim in Bandung attitude's changed. This research was conducted with qualitative research methods and using the phenomenology paradigm. In obtaining credible data researchers conducted interviews with four informants from three different universities. The results of the study are (1) The most common form of violence is the limitation of activity, all informants explained that the violence starts from the limitation of activities due to excessive jealousy of the informant's friendship environment. (2) The attitude alteration felt by some informants includes the fear of starting a relationship with the opposite sex and feeling difficult to believe in the opposite sex.

Keywords: Phenomenology, Students, Violence in Dating, Change in Attitude