

ABSTRACT

Convenience is something sought by every human being, on the condition of the complex world like this man no longer want complicated with the actual activities can be done without having to come into contact directly or through online system. In communicating through the internet, the user requires a container known as the web. The purpose of this research is to provide applications that are directly connected to a complete website regarding information and sale of building materials along with prices and contact information of the company so as to facilitate user searching for building materials in Online. The research method used is the waterfall which include communication, planning, modeling, construction and deployment. The making of the application using some software i.e. Sublime, Wampp Server, PHP, MySQL, HTML and creating web-based applications that can provide information about products for sale and booking online.

Keywords: Website, Application, Online