Sexual violence is a crime that always happens every year. Violence consists of nine types, namely: Sexual exploitation, forced use of contraception, forced abortion, rape, forced marriage, forced prostitution, sexy slavery, sexy torture, sexy torture and sexual harassment. Sexual harassment is one of the most common types of sexy violence, from 2017 to 2019 there were 1353 cases. The author conducted a research on the harassment of a section of students, with Telkom University as a case study. Using an explanatory mixed method where the author will conduct quantitative research first and then the results of quantitative research studies will be used for further research in qualitative research. Section harassment is a rare case at Telkom University, not because of section harassment, no victims of section harassment did not report cases to the authorities. Due to mental health conditions that demand abuse that can be traumatized and cannot be discussed. Therefore, there is no data available.
