

Abstract

This work shows how human perception in seeing a form in a space through experience. It also shows how the experience, then turns things, humans, and whatever is in that space- even the space itself -into a relation between them. These aspects giving influence to one another, even influencing our perception through the process of perceiving an object as a whole. In this case, this work presents it in the form of spatial experience construction with motor and laser.

Keyword: perception, form, space, human, experience, relation.