Play and recreation are activities that can be done when there is free time for certain purposes. Play is a fun activity and for children playing is also a need that must be met (Musfiroh, 2005: 45). By doing these activities, children can enrich new insights and experiences that are not obtained at school or at home. One of the playgrounds and recreation of children is a playground that can stimulate children's motoric both gross and fine motoric.

On its development, currently, many playgrounds are designed indoors. Most indoor playgrounds in Bandung are designed for children to play and parents lack the role when children play and tend to supervise and occasionally play with their children.
