

ABSTRACT

Human needs are growing each day, various innovations have been made, including in the field of technology that makes it easier for people to access things so that this can trigger consumptive nature in society. This consumptive life does not only occur in adults but youths are also influenced by these technological advances. Vulnerable late adolescence is a vulnerable age where at that time the late teens have prepared themselves for the possibilities in the future. The conclusions of the analysis were obtained from the analytical method through literature studies through books and journals as well as valid mass media pages such as trusted news portals and government-owned websites. Expectations of the final result that has been designed are information media as an effort to boost interest and the emerging awareness of youth about the importance of taking out Islamic financial management earnestly.

Keywords: Consumptive, Islamic Economics, Youth, Education