

ABSTRACT

One of the appeals of Bandung City is the natural condition and the cool and cold weather compared to other cities in Indonesia. Those appeals are due to its highlands location and surrounded by mountains and hills so that it offers a cooler climate and is preferred by most people and tourists. For this reason, For this reason, this design needs to provide 3-star hotel lodging facilities in the middle of the city with its natural elements so that it can give the impression of calming, refreshing, relaxing visitors. Starting from using environmentally friendly materials, energy saving, and giving positive effects to the visitors are mandatory to apply to this design. The comfort of the visitors could be influenced by the scent of plants, water, noise, wind and the interior elements including colors, materials, ornaments, and shapes that are in the hotel so it gives a positive impression so that visitors can conclude the atmosphere created. With a direct connection with natural elements, it could make the visitors feel calm by direct physical presence through the environment that has been created in this building will affect the human condition that will provide a positive stimulus to stimulate the visitors to its own charms. So, it could be used as the character for the hotel's interior atmosphere by using the Interior Landscape approach. And it could also answer the problems that arise in the interior design of three-stars hotel.
