

ABSTRACT

Religion is the main principle of mankind to live a good life, without any religious principles or faith will make humans become greedy creatures or often experience dissatisfaction, because dissatisfaction occurs on the basis of nothing, because humans keep thinking whether nothing exists. It is undeniable that dissatisfaction and greed are human nature. This Final Project entitled "180 Degrees" aims to provide input to all humans that life does not have to depend on dissatisfaction and assume that nothing exists. This work was created using experimental techniques, which of course is very rare in Indonesia. In making this experiment, it is necessary to collect data collected through a survey of how well the respondents know about the experiment. For the final result, this work is in the form of an experimental genre film with a total time of 10 minutes 42 seconds which can be watched on the TwentyFour Project YouTube channel.
