

ABSTRACT

Suryakanti Clinic Bandung is engaged in developing children's potential, helping children with special needs to experience physical, intellectual and mental and emotional limitations. Children with special needs have special characters with a certain level that cannot interact like other normal people, including in the therapy room, therefore special therapy room facilities are needed for children with special needs, taking into account the condition of the clinical therapy room for children with special needs therapy runs as it should. . Basically, the interior elements given to the therapy room for children with special needs must be in accordance with the characteristics of the child that makes the child feel safe, the rooms are arranged in surprise so that interactions occur in the therapy room and improve communication with each other.

The application of the therapy room at Suryakanti Clinic still needs to be addressed in terms of user needs, which must be in accordance with the characteristics of each child with special needs so that therapy runs according to the right priority for safety and comfort. Using a character and behavior approach, children can identify needs that can or cannot be applied to interior therapy rooms by knowing the child's character and behavior.

Keywords: Children with special needs, Klinik, Therapy, Character and Behavior.