

ABSTRACT

The IQ test is an examination carried out with the aim of knowing the level of human intelligence, making an IQ test website for selecting majors using the CFIT and John Holland methods based on this website is expected to provide convenience to users in carrying out an IQ test for selecting majors. The presentation of tests used through the website is expected to provide many benefits for users. The methods used in this research are CFIT and John Holland to determine a person's IQ and major. The input from the IQ test system for selecting majors for scoring tests using the CFIT and Holland methods is that CFIT consists of 50 available questions and Holland consists of the number of questions provided. Then the process carried out is to answer questions and questions in the system. The output of this major selection IQ test is to determine one's IQ and college major. With the existence of a website for IQ tests in choosing majors, we can introduce how important it is to use methods or IQ tests in the process of selecting college majors. This will greatly help make it easier for individuals to determine the right choice of major.

Keywords: CFIT, Holland, IQ test, website, major selection