

ABSTRACT

Museum is a cultural heritage building to broaden horizons and knowledge, such as the geology museum which has information about geological strata that exist in indonesia from time to time. this museum has around 353,732 collection objects, while only 1,999 collections are exhibited to the public due to the lack of facilities to display these collection objects. in addition, the delivery of information that is less than optimal to visitors so that visitors do not understand what the museum wants to convey about collection objects. This new interior design is needed to support exhibition activities and further museum activities by designing a museum that can be an educational facility that makes visitors get a new atmosphere, one of which is by utilizing interactive media as a means of education and delivering more fun information that can attract public interest.
