

ABSTRACT

M-One Sentul Hotel is a hotel building with four floors and one basement. The average number of visitors who come to this hotel are adults, 80% of whom are business people and 20% of the users are tourists with an average age of 30 to 50 years, because this hotel is a three-star business hotel type located on Jl. Raya Jakarta-Bogor No. km 49, RW.5, Cimandala, Kec. Sukaraja, Bogor Regency, West Java. At the M-one Sentul Hotel, there is a lobby area, restaurant area, office space, and guestroom. Apart from that, this hotel also has several facilities such as meeting rooms, ballrooms, prayer rooms, swimming pools, karaoke rooms, nightclubs, spas, and gyms. The aim of redesigning the interior of the M-One Sentul Hotel is that apart from being aimed at making it one of the best business hotels, this design also aims to fulfill all needs for the comfort of visitor activities to make them more productive and effective. According to the Minister of Tourism and Creative Economy Regulation Number PM.53/HM.001/MPEK/2013. A hotel is an accommodation business that provides accommodation in a building, which can be equipped with daily food services, activities, entertainment, or other facilities to make a profit. The interior design of the M-one Hotel was carried out using an activity approach according to Anjani, R. S., Hapsoro, N. A., & Gunawan, A. N. S. (2023). The activity approach can create a comfortable space and user flow that is adapted to human activity so that it can provide work productivity and comfort. Precedent studies and comparative studies are used to find problems with supporting elements as design references used in designing the M-one Sentul Hotel and data collection for precedent studies and comparative studies is carried out online through the hotel's official website, journals, and others. The design of the M-One Sentul Hotel can be achieved by applying the theme "Optimize space functions according to needs" to give an impression of visitor activities so that they can increase productivity and comfort while working or just on holiday while in the building.
