

ABSTRACT

Political dynamics, impact the behavior of Parliament member, both at the national, provincial, and city or district levels. In this context, the behavioral changes among members of the Regional People's Representative Council (DPRD) of Siak Regency have rendered the current design of the DPRD office in Siak Regency irrelevant to meet their needs. As a result, the efficiency and effectiveness of the DPRD members performance in Siak Regency are disrupted.

The DPRD office is a state-owned building that functions as a gathering place for DPRD members to discuss or make rules and regulations for the benefit of the people and the state. This makes it necessary for the DPRD office to have an inclusive atmosphere with good accessibility, as well as being a comfortable place and can raise the work spirit of the users, to ensure smooth government activities.

The redesign of the Siak Regency DPRD Office applies a behavioral approach, aiming to better understand the activities and habits of users, so that it can provide a more efficient and accessible design.

Data collection was carried out through several methods, including interviews, direct observation in the field, documentation of design objects, and literature studies that include relevant journals, books, and articles.
