

ABSTRACT

Postgraduate Education is one of the programs that is organized by various higher education institutions, including Suryakancana University Cianjur, which is a private university located in Cianjur Regency, West Java. This university organizes three master's programs in its Postgraduate program that emphasizes on the curriculum design based on the Indonesian National Qualification Framework (better known as KKNI), which will definitely raise the need of discussion between students to reach the study goals. But unfortunately, the interiors of Suryakancana University's Postgraduate Building has not able to properly meet these needs yet. This can result in the reduction of effectiveness and quality of learning. This is why a redesign of the building's interior is needed, to adjust the organization and interior needs to the learning needs where discussion is one of the most important things. Through this redesign, it is hoped that the room users can feel much more comfortable and can improve indoor performance.
