ABSTRACT

Technological development is very rapid at this time even more rapidly than the population in the world when this.So advanced technological developments demand more the technology of various kinds as is the application of technology surface.Like car reservations with website gateway.Because sms base on car booking earlier are still using the system offline or having to come face to face between the customer and the company.

The final project is expected to be used by users in practice in terms of the process of ordering a car that can be implemented to meet the needs of this region.Aplication both internet-based websites and applications that gateway.Other sms expected to be more effective because it is useful to allow users to place an order cars wherever they are.

In this application, do some measurements fungsionality.One of this is delay.Delay measurement of which is intended here is to delay the transfer of data from database to database on localhost hosting.In These measurements were obtained an average of 12.9 s.The connections influenced the data transfer speed rate.

Keywords: SMS Gateway Web site, reservation a car