ABSTRACT

The world of work is the next level to be every man's face to apply the knowledge gained, in this case the result of the educational process. Knowledge is not limited to the academic field, but also the introduction of themselves in order to adjust to the work environment and achieve optimal results.

The final project entitled "Web-based Application Recognition of Human Character to Determine the Appropriate Job" is have the ability in the provision of information concerning the employee's character. Classification of the four basic human character is accompanied by the appropriate job information for each character. Besides these applications using web-based technology that is expected this application to help company to organized their employees character and make employee to access the selection process easily.

" Web-based Application Recognition of Human Character to Determine the Appropriate Job" was createdcan be used as a tool to help companies recognize the character of employees.

Keywords: Employee's character recognition, promotion process.